Saturday, September 20. 1707.

The Conclusion of the Pope's Monitory of his Excommunication of the Emperour's Minister, General Officers, &c. who were concern'd in the Agreement for Contributions in the Duchy of Parma.

We will and decree likewise, that the Censures and Ecclesiastical Penalties which all those who perpetrated the Premisses have incur'd, and are to be or perhaps have been denounc'd against them openly and publickly according to custom, pursuant to our Orders to the foresaid Bishops, shall be valid and stand good, as well against those who in any wise were guilty of the Premisses by presuming to invade, molest, and by the foremention'd Methods disturb, the Territories and Places of the above-mention'd Duchy, as those who laid and impos'd the foresaid Burthens and Oppressions on the Persons and Estates of the Clergy of that Duchy, either by themselves or others, directly or indirectly, together with their Adherents, Fautors, and Abettors, and all such who gave them Aid, Counsel, or Favour in any Manner, how illustrious soever their Rank or Dignity may be; who when they shall have made due Restitution for the Damages they have done, and given con-dign Satisfaction besides to the Church, shall yet no otherwise be absolv'd and discharg'd from the said Censures and Penalties, than by Us, or the Roman Pontiff for the Time being (except at the Point of Death, nor then, unless they give sufficient Caution to obey and satisfy the Commands of the Church; and they shall revert into the same Condition as before, if they happen to recover.)

We decree likewise that these Presents and whatever is therein contain'd, can in no wise be excepted against, impugn'd, invalidated, revers'd, call'd in Question, or examin'd by Terms of Law; tho' it should be alledg'd that the foremention'd Persons and all others interested in the Premisses, or in any Manner pretending to have Interest, even tho' they be worthy of special and particular Mention, did not consent thereto, nor were summon'd, cited, or heard; or that the Causes for which these Presents were issued were not sufficiently enumerated, made out, or in any Manner justify'd; neither for any Cause, Colour, or Pretext whatever, or for any Article or Sense contain'd in the Body of the Law, shall these Proceedings ever be charg'd with any Error of Sub-reption, or Obreption, Nullity, or Invalidity, Effect of our Intention or of the Consent of those who are or pretend to be concern'd; nor with any other Errour, how great, how unthought of, or how unimaginable soever, arising from any Reason, Right, Fact, Statute, Custom, or Privilege whatever: But these Presents shall be and remain for ever firm, valid, and effectual; and shall have and obtain their full and intire Effect; and be inviolably observ'd by all and singular Persons whom it does or shall at any Time concern. And thus, and no otherwise shall it be adjudg'd and decided touching all and singular the Premises, by all Judges, ordinary, and delegated, even the Auditors of the Causes of the Apostolical Palace, and the Cardinals of the holy Roman Church, even the Legates de Latere, and the Nuncios of the foresaid Apostolical See, and all others whatever Preeminence and Power they are or shall be vested with; taking from them and every one of them all Power and Authority of judging and interpreting in any other Manner; and declareing whatever any Person shall by any Authority happen to attempt contrary hereunto, either knowingly or ignorantly, to be void and of no Effect.

The Premises, the general and particular Constitutions and Ordinances pass'd in the Apostolical, Universial, Provincial, or Synodical Councils; and as far as is needful our own and the Apostolical Chancery's Rule of not taking away any acquir'd Right; the Laws, both Imperial and Municipal; all Statutes, and Customs immemorial, tho' corroborated by Oath, Apostolical Confirmation, or any other way authoris'd; all Privileges, Indulgences, and Apostolical Letters, granted to whatever Persons, how eminent soever in Dignity, and deserving most particular Mention, in whatever Tenour and Form of Words, and with whatever Derogations of Derogations, or other more effectual, most effectual, unusual and annulling Clauses; and all other Decrees, tho' proceeding from like Motion, Knowledge, and plenary Power; and, in Consistory or otherwise, granted, issued, made, and several times reiterated, and how often soever approv'd, confirm'd, and renew'd, contrary to the Premises; NOTWITHSTANDING. From all and singular of which, tho' for sufficiently derogating from them and their whole Tenour, special, particular, express, and distinct Mention, Word for Word, and not in general Clauses importing the same, be not made; or tho' any other Expression, or peculiar Form to that Purpose ought to have been us'd; deeming such like Contents, to be as fully and sufficiently express'd and inserted in these Presents, as if they had been duly express'd Word for Word without any Omission, and in the usual Form, We do, leaving such Expression and Form in Force in all other Cases, for this Time only, that the Premises may take Effect, expressly and particularly derogate, and will and declare to be derogated, as well as from all and every other thing contrary hereunto.

Our Will further is, that to Extracts, or Copies of these Presents, even printed, if subscrib'd by the hand of a Publick Notary, and corroborated with the Seal of a Person distinguish'd by any Ecclesiastical Dignity, the same Credit shall be given in all Places and Nations, as well in as out of Courts of Judicature, as would be given to these Presents, if they were produc'd or exhibited in the Original. Dated at Rome, in Maria Majore, under the Seal of the Fisherman, the 27th of July 1707, of our Pontificate the 7th Year.

F. Oliverius.

In the Year from the Nativity of our Lord Jesus Christ 1707, on the 1st Day of the Month of August, the 15th Indiction, in the 7th Year of the Pontificate of our most holy Father in Christ, our Lord the Lord Clement XI by Divine Providence Pope, the aforesaid Apostolical Letters were publickly affix'd, on the Gates of the Lateran Church, and of the Cathedral of the Prince of the Apostles, as also on those of the Apostolical Chancery, of the general Court of Monte Citorio, and in the Front of Campo di Fiori, and other usual and accustom'd Places of the City; by me Benedetto Baldi Apost.
